Analytical measurement of ammonium, as the sole inorganic cation, in biological fluids by ion chromatography is demonstrated. Ion chromatography on a tricarballylate-modified column with a pH 2.5 eluent gave a linear response between 0.01 and 50 mM and a detection limit of 1 nmol per microliter of urine. In contrast, a chromatographic system with a pH 3.5 eluent gave only a linear response between 1 and 50 mM and a detection limit of 10 nmol per microliter of urine. It is speculated that these differences are due to the higher hydroxide stability constant of the tricarballylate ion. Measurements on dog feces showed a linear response from 10 to 200 mumol per liter and a detection limit of 0.5 mumol per liter. However, the detection limit for human urine was 200 mumol per liter and for feces, 1000 mumol per liter. Preconcentration on cation- and/or anion-exchange resins and extraction of ammonium by a diethylaminoethanolbased reagent and by a phosphate-based reagent were studied. The diethylaminoethanol-based reagent was best suited for
